Official launch date confirmed for Flow boiler

Flowgroup plc (AIM: FLOW), which develops and commercialises alternative and efficient energy technology products, announces that it has confirmed the launch date for the Flow boiler, with the product available for customers for the first time from 10am on 26 January 2015.

Full details of Flow's unique proposition, including pricing, will be available on the Flow Energy website (www.flowenergy.uk.com) from this time, and customers, subject to certain suitability questions, will be able to sign up from that date to receive Flow's microCHP boiler. Customers can still register their interest in the boiler via the website in advance of the official launch.

Tony Stiff, Group CEO of Flowgroup, commented: "I am delighted that following the initiation of production at the end of last year that everything remains on track for the full commercial launch of the Flow Boiler this month. We already have a strong pool of customers who have registered their interest in being the first people to use a Flow boiler and we remain confident that our marketing programmes will continue to generate interest in what we expect to be one of the most revolutionary products in the home energy market."
